

METAL PLANES FORECAST NEW AIR CONQUEST

Successful Trans-Continental Trip
in Aluminum Ship Speds Down of Old Kind.

San Francisco, Sept. 2.—The metal sky age is here.

It was ushered in for this country with the transcontinental path-finding flight of all-aluminum air seaplanes for the postoffice department, just concluded.

So successful was the experiment, so superior the behavior of the metal plane under all conditions encountered, that expert observers predict the junking of practically all other existing aircraft in the United States within a year.

After a flight of 3,600 miles from New York to San Francisco without a single serious accident, the two all-metal planes built by John M. Larsen of New York have been pronounced by government officials and aeronautics experts as the most perfect ever constructed.

Government Buys New Type.

Already the government has purchased six of the new planes for the trans-continental air mail service beginning Sept. 5. A contract for a much larger number is being negotiated.

The plane, a monoplane type, has a wing spread of 46 feet and is 30 feet long.

Weighing 2,250 pounds empty, it has a speed of 120 miles per hour and a cruising radius of 1,000 miles on a single filling.

Its 160-horse-power motor makes 25 miles to the gallon and will lift 2,000 pounds.

It carries five passengers, exclusive of the pilot and mechanic and is made of aluminum alloy.

Compared with this the Martin bomber which has been used to carry government mail weighs well over 2,000 pounds, has two 400-horse-power engines, makes only three to four miles per gallon of gasoline and has a lifting capacity of slightly over 1,000 pounds.

Eliminates Fire Danger.

All danger of fire is eliminated in the Larsen plane, and the aluminum wings are so constructed that warping, the cause of so many air accidents, is practically impossible.

The trip from New York was made in 36 hours actual flying time.

at an average of 100 miles an hour. Greater speed could have been made, but Major L. E. Lent, general superintendent of the United States air mail service, was a passenger and frequent stops were made to gather data for the new trans-continental route. Told U. S. on Trip. Commenting on his trip, John Larsen, builder, said: "I saw my country wasting millions in air service experiments. I went abroad and studied airplanes. I flew 34,000 miles myself over many countries of Europe. I found what I wanted and brought it home. My life now is devoted to developing my new all-metal monoplane, which, I believe, puts the United States on the highest pinnacle of practical sky operation. An important feature of the flight is that it practically eliminates the proposed flooding of the American market with cast-off British war planes which were to be shipped into this country shortly and sold at prices below American competition.

JAPS STAY AT VLADIVOSTOK. Honolulu, T. H., Sept. 3.—Japan has declared her intention of keeping troops at Vladivostok until security of life and property is guaranteed, according to Vladivostok reports to Tokio cabled to a Japanese newspaper here. The only food tax imposed in the Isle of Man is eight cents a pound on tea.
